We are pleased to offer the 18-hour Primarily Math graduate program to a cohort of teachers in grades K-3. Teachers who complete the program apply to earn a K-3 Math Specialist Certificate from the University of Nebraska–Lincoln.

Applications are due by May 12, 2020!

- Ideal for teachers who enjoy teaching mathematics and seek to develop special strengths in mathematical and pedagogical knowledge, which leads to enhanced student learning in their classrooms.
- Teachers selected for the Primarily Math program will take two ONLINE graduate courses in Summer 2020 as part of Nebraska Math and Science Summer Institutes. Math 800P and 801P will be offered June 8-26, for three weeks total, in a synchronous setup as a group.
- The Fall 2020 and Spring 2021 courses will each be online. The last two courses in Summer 2021 will meet in June for two weeks at the ESU 3 office in La Vista.
- A 20% tuition discount applies for the Primarily Math summer courses, and teachers can apply for additional NMSSI Fellowships to further reduce the costs.

Applications are due May 12, 2020. The application to Graduate Studies is linked from our website: http://scimath.unl.edu/primarilymath. Applications are submitted online through CollegeNet, via the UNL Office of Graduate Studies, for the K-3 Math Certificate from Teaching, Learning and Teacher Education.

Note: For Summer 2020, tuition for all courses will be set at the in-person tuition rate and will be delivered online. The University Program and Facilities Fee and the Online Distance Fees are waived.
